To all our Readers; Family and Friends

Not too long ago when we first heard about COVID-19 it was a remote idea in most of our minds that it would have such an impact on our lives and all the things that we are used to doing. This is new to all of us, whether you are over 60 and homebound, have a career and now must work from home, a young college student not able to finish the semester (especially challenging to those who were scheduled to graduate in May), to all the children who are now being homeschooled, and to their parents who may have never given this option any thought, and most of all to all of the people who are on the front line and working ever day: All the healthcare workers - nurses, doctors, physician assistants, office workers at hospitals, security guards and all staff who are needed to work at our hospitals including housecleaning personnel and those preparing meals for patients. And to the police force, firefighters, EMTs, highway crews, CO's, truck drivers, and all those who are still going to work because they need to. They are out there every day fighting this war for us. Please remember them all in your thoughts and prayers.

There is not one of us living in America today that is not affected in some way. There will be many who will be making drastic life changes through this and after. One thing we can count on - we are Americans, we are strong and we are the United States. We will win this war!

With that being said, even our little local newspapers will be making some changes for now. The Townsman will be available on-line each week, and continue to bring announcements, and legals. We will continue to provide news and information that we consider important, informative and even a little fun. If you have a story, pictures, a suggestion or something you would like to have published in The Townsman, send it along to: tvtownsman@yahoo.com.

As things are changing from moment-to-moment, please realize that while all of our local advertisers are still in business, many are not be able to do business as usual. Please call them for up-to-dated information.

Once this is over, please don't forget our local businesses that have been here for us in the past. They are the backbone of our community. Supporting them all in the future will help to heal our community.

Our lives have changed since last week, let us all make the most of what we have. If we keep hope and love in our hearts, we will see a solution. And if you have a moment or two, why not pick up your phone and call someone who may be alone and let them know you haven't forgotten them.

Have a Dandy Day

The dark cloud of the COVID-19 is hovering over all of us. We have carefully vetted over all of our needs by now and perhaps come up with some ideas and solutions. Some things are within our control, and others let's just say, we just have to wait for the outcome.

We all know we do need to stay vigilant and how important it is right now to follow the rules.

We are so fortunate to live in the country and are looking forward to blue skies and sunshine. By the way, my daughter encouraged me to look up what the skies look like over San Francisco - for the first time in ages, you can see the top of the Golden Gate Bridge and blue skies! One of the smoggiest cities in the country has dramatically improved air quality now that people are staying home. In Italy, the canals are clearing inviting back the swans and fish!

Living in the Catskills we can enjoy all of nature's bounty. Even the weeds! It is not too early to take a walk around your home and see the familiar saw-toothed leaves of dandelion plants here and there. Before getting out that weed killer note, there are a few things you can do with dandelions. (Continued on Page 3)

Not only are the local residents of Claryville somewhat annoyed by the large groups of snowmobilers that whiz across their front lawns, but even local snowmobilers themselves are beginning to grumble. Groups of snowmobile riders from out of the area come here in large numbers and if they find the trail with tracks of a previous snowmobile on it, they unload their machines and off they go.

Having a Dandy Day (From Pg. 1)

Now that we aren't running to the supermarket and have a big stache of the recycable shopping bags, take one outside and look for these little patches of dandelion leaves. For starters, you may want to pick just enough to make a salad. Or you might want to pick a bigger bunch and sautee them with garlic. If you are ambitious, you can dig up a plant that is growing where you don't want it - but don't throw it out! The dried root of dandelion is a great substitute for coffee - and it is caffiene free!

In a few weeks when the leaves are bigger and broader, you can actually make Dandelion Leaf Chips. They will be a little on the bitter side, but quite healthy and different when crushed into flakes and used to top off a bowl of mashed potatoes!

Once the flowers appear, there are many other tasty things you can do with the flowers - all safe and nutritious, and the price is right - FREE for the PICKIN'S!

Whether it is going outside to pick dandelion leaves or flowers, or digging up some roots, it is a proven fact that being out in nature is a natural destressor, which we could all use right now.

Here are a few recipes just for starters. There are many more on the internet, too.

Drying Dandelion Root

After you dig up some root, wash it thoroughly and dry it with a paper towel.

There are several ways to roast the root. Chop up the root and place them pieces in a dehydrator at 95° for about 12 hours or until they are brittle.

If you don't have a dehydrator, you can just place the pieces on a paper towel in a cool dry place, and let them dry out until brittle

And then there is a quick and easy way - place the pieces in a cast iron frying pan. Using medium-high heat, stir the root until the pieces become golden brown and fragrant. That's it!

Dandelion Coffee isn't actually coffee, but it is like someone who reminds you of a friend, and yet you can't quite place your finger on why. Dandelion Coffee is like that - compared to your regular morning brew!

And here is the recipe:

Dandelion Root Coffee

You will need a medium sized pot and a spoon to stir.

• 4 1/2 teaspoons of dried dandelion root along

• 2 cups of water,

• either a tablespoon of butter or some cream.

Optional - Add a cinnamon stick; or a half a teaspoon of dried ginger or a teaspoon of fresh ginger; or vanilla extract to taste. You may add one of these ingredients or all; get creative and try something different each time.

Place the pot over medium heat and place the dried dandelion root in the bottom. Add the butter and the optional choices and bring to a boil. After the water boils, reduce the heat and allow to simmer for 30-40 minutes. Strain and serve.

Adding a dolop of whipped cream sprinkled with a little cinnamon not only makes a delicious healthy brew, but it is appealing and relaxing to the eye, especially if you like whipped cream!

Forsythia and Dandelion Jelly

(Forsythia will be blossoming soon) A foraged, golden-colored, spring-tonic- jelly for your toast that includes real vanilla and raw honey. Gather the blossoms for this jelly in the morning before the sun is too high and be prepared to make this jelly by afternoon. Wilted blooms are harder to clean and process, Ingredients About 9 cups of blossoms that become 3 cups of tea 0

3 cups quality honey 0

2 Tbsp. lemon juice 0

- 1 Vanilla bean cut open and scraped 0
- 0 1 box regular pectin

THE TOWNSMAN

Instructions

1. Pick about 8-10 cups of fresh blooms. This isn't an exact science. But typically a good ration is one-part dandelions to two parts forsythia blooms. You can just make this with forsythia blooms, but the pollen and of the dandelions give the jelly a beautiful golden color. 2. You don't have to bother to take the bottoms off the forsythia as they just taste "planty" but do remove the green bottoms of the dandelions since they're bitter. Use a kitchen scissor and cut off the green part and keep the petals and pollen.

3. Pour enough boiling water over the flowers to cover them - at least 4 cups. The more water you add, the weaker the tea will be and, therefore, the less flavor the jelly will have in the end. As you make each new batch, you might want to adjust the recipe a few times until you find what you like.

4. Steep the water and flowers for 4 hours or overnight.

5. Strain through cheesecloth to remove the flower parts, leaving a lovely, golden tea.

6. Put tea, lemon juice and the contents of a box of pectin into a large saucepan. Add vanilla seeds or you can also add a vanilla bean when you are boiling the mixture. If you do that, simply remove the bean before you put the jelly into jars. Or, you can leave the bean in one jar and gift it to someone extra special. 7. Bring the mixture to a boil.

Add honey. 8.

9. Bring back to a boil and boil for about 2 minutes. Ladle into hot, prepared jelly jars, leaving 1/4-inch head-space and assemble the lids.

10. Process in a water bath canner for 10 minutes.

Sauteed Dandelion Greens

3 pound dandelion greens with tough lower stems discarded/leaves cut crosswise into 2-inch pieces 1/2 cup extra-virgin olive oil

5 large garlic cloves, smashed

1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon dried hot red-pepper flakes 1/2 teaspoon fine sea salt

1. Cook greens in a 10-to 12-quart pot of boiling salted water (3 tablespoons salt for 8 quarts water), uncovered, until ribs are tender, about 10 minutes. Drain in a colander, then rinse under cold water to stop cooking and drain well, gently pressing out excess water. 2. Heat oil in a 12-inch heavy skillet over medium heat until it shimmers, then cook garlic and red-pepper flakes, stirring, until pale golden, about 45 seconds. Increase heat to medium-high, then add greens and sea salt and sauté until coated with oil and heated through, about 4 minutes.

Dandelion greens can be boiled 3 days ahead. Chill, wrapped in paper towels, in a sealed bag and put in the refrigerator.

Dandelion Pesto

Ingredients:

- 3 cups washed and cleaned dandelion leaves 3/4 cup olive oil
- 3 cloves garlic, peeled
- 1/2 cup walnuts, lightly toasted
- 1 teaspoon sea salt
- 1 cup parmesan cheese zest of a lemon
- juice of half a lemon

Instructions

1. Combine all ingredients in a food processor or vitamix and blend until creamy and smooth

You can use this for a pizza sauce, on top of pasta, dressing or marinade.

This pesto has an intense flavor and a little goes a long way.

After you get to know Dandelions a little better, you will see they are a lot more than the not the subject of jokes. They are super greens! They are rich in iron, high in calcium, have more protein than spinach and they are packed with antioxidants, all those things that keep you looking and feeling good.

Nature Column - Linda Comando

A tribute to the memory of all of the Townsman Ladies that we have lost and loved so much... Peggy DeWire, Avril Pappa, Joan Hall, Polly Hill, Joyce Lockhart, Jean Helthaler, Karen Curry and Barbara Slater.

Don't Understimate a Dandelion

Whether you love them or hate them, dandelions are among the most familiar plants in the northern hemisphere. Just about anyone can identify a dandelion at a glance. The Dandelion (Taraxacum officinale) is a hardy perennial that can grow to a height of nearly 12 inches. Each bloom is made up of numer-ous strap-shaped florets of bright golden yellow. This strapshaped corolla is notched at the edge into five teeth, each tooth, a petal, narrows down into a claw-like tube, which rests on a single-chambered ovary containing a single ovule where the Dandelion produces considerable quantities of both pollen and nectar in the early spring. No matter how cool the weather may be the Dandelion continues to produce a small succession of

The Dan-delion has a thick tap root, that is dark brown, almost black on the outside and milky white within. Its long jagged leaves rise directly from a rosette form lying close upon the ground. Each leaf is grooved and created so that falling rain goes straight to the center of the rosette to the root allowing the plant to obtain sufficient moisture.

The leaves are deeply-notched, toothy, spatula-like that are usually shiny and hairless and the edge of each leaf is cut into great jagged teeth.

The larger teeth are cut into lesser teeth resembling the teeth of a lion; thus its name. According to the French the name is Dent de Lion. In Latin the name would be Dens leonis; and the Greek in Leontodon.

golden blossoms and lion-toothed leaves were more likely to be praised as a bounty of food, medicine and magic. Gardeners used to weed out the grass to make room for the dandelions. Dandelions were a common and beloved garden flower in Europe, and the subject of many poems. In the terrifying New World, the cheerful face of a Dandelion was a sweet reminder of home.

Dandelions were considered a green and growing first aid kit in olden times, as they were prescribed for every ailment from warts to the plague, dandruff, toothache, sores, fevers, rotting gums, weakness, lethargy and depression. Not until the twentieth century was the underlying cause of many of those symptoms realized as vitamin deficiencies. Dandelions have more vitamin A than spinach, more vitamin C than tomatoes, and are a powerhouse of iron, calcium and potassium.

Despite their reputation in most neighborhoods, Dandelions are actually good for your lawn. Their wide-spreading roots loosen hard-packed soil, aerate the earth and help reduce soil erosion. The deep taproot also pulls nutrients s from deep in the soil and makes them available to other plants.

Dandelions are hardy, healthy and just plain fun. The Dandelion seems to be the flower earmarked for children. In a park or a garden, it's one of the flowers a child can pick without getting into trouble. A child in a field full of dandelions never ran out of things to do. Blowing on Dandelion puffball can tell you if it's time to go home, how many years until you get married, or how many children you'll have - and of course, if you catch a flying dandelion seed, you can make a wish!

Dandelions are fast growers. The sunny yellow flowers go from bud to seed in just a few days. They are also long-lived. An individual plant can live for years. Just think, the dandelion hidden in a corner of your yard or on the playground might be older than the children running past it.

Household Hints

Now that we are home, we realize one of our cats likes sleeping on the carpeted stairway. Not wanting to step on him, we tried chasing him, carrying him to another cozy place and even yelling at him. But he is a cat!!! After spraying the stairs with vinegar - he now has a different attitude, and rather lay on the piano and look out the window. Put straight vinegar in a spray bottle and spray where you don't want kitty to go. You may want to do a little test so you don't stain any wood, surface, fabric or carpet you spray it on.

The Border Mysterious Book Report No. 368

by John Dwaine McKenna

Mi-Hi Abrahams is living the American dream. She's the mother of two children; a boy age five and a girl age two and a half, married to a Wall Street lawyer, and living a privileged, wealthy lifestyle on Manhattan's upper east side where she's a doting mommy and actively involved in the PTA and community charity events. But it's all a lie. The woman's real name is Song Sun Young, and she's a spy . . . what's known as a sleeper . . . for the NKPR, the North Korean People's Republic in author John Altman's electrifying new thriller: The Korean Woman, (Blackstone Publishing, $26.99, 261 pages, ISBN 978-1-4708-2697-0).

Song Sun Young barely managed to survive a brutal childhood in North Korea after her parents were killed, by engineering two escapes from the harshest imaginable prison camps before she turned eleven years old. Instead of being shot, the authorities recognized her brains, beauty and talent and decided to utilize her abilities to advance the aims of the state. She was plucked out of prison and began a decade long training course in spycraft. With her younger brother still held by the regime as insurance, Song applied herself with diligence, efficiency and ruthlessness. Showing no remorse after her first kill, she's infiltrated into South Korea with a new identity, then into the United States under still another false identity. There, she settles in, gets married, has kids . . . and waits . . . for the call she hopes never comes. But just six years later, it does. She's tasked with stealing the inner workings of America's financial system.

Unbeknownst to the North Koreans, the NSA, National Security Agency, using newly developed secret computers, has broken into the NKPR's cyber systems. The American CIA has been watching Song Sun Young for two years. The covert team leader calls upon retired Israeli operative Dalia Artzi, (a character introduced in Altman's last thriller, False Flag, MBR No. 322), who's a world-class expert in the history and tactics of warfare and a professor at Princeton. Her role is to figure out what the Koreans are attempting, as they observe Song's behavior while she relentlessly goes about her mission. What she sees convinces Dalia that Song is an unwitting dupe in a larger game, watching in horror as the nuclear-armed antagonists start their countdowns to the unthinkable in this teeth-gritting, pulse pounding and searing, all-too-real scenario that will leave you panting for more as Altman shows us once again, why he's fast becoming one of the top thriller writers in the world

(From Pg. 1) A large part of a Poetry Slam is the performance aspect and the students certainly didn't disappoint. Each student, or group of students, memorized an originally written poem and then delivered the poem with their best sense of emotion and theatrics. The audience showed their appreciation by responding to several of the poems with applause and laughter. But perhaps the best part of the day was witnessing the kids come together as one to support and encourage each other throughout the event. The event was hosted by 9th grade students Louis Bilancione, Jocelyn Mungeer, and Dylan Poley, last year's Performance Award winners. Mrs. Brenda Sloan-Tri-Valley Spanish teacher-served as the event's guest poet. She performed her poem titled "To My Students." Mrs. Sloan wrote her poem about her love and devotion for all of her "kids" throughout the years. Before her poem, she expressed her admiration for the job the 8th grade students did.

The Tri-Valley Annual Poetry Slam is run by 8th grade ELA teacher Matt Haynes. Mr. Haynes has overseen the Poetry Slam for all ten years of its existence. Deb Swett, middle school special education teacher, also plays a large part in organizing the event.

Overall, the event was a huge success and it couldn't have brought more pride to all of those involved. Congratulations again to all of the participating 8th graders-hopefully it's something they won't soon forget.

FHS Hosts CCE's Healthy Cooking Again (From Pg. 1) On Monday, March 9, ninth graders Mikalah Ballard and Aisha Darboe, who were cooking last year with Ms. Boyd, and seventh grader Yenessa Cruz, were and meat chopped. The girls then followed the recipe.

The pasta salad was indeed quite colorful, with peas, cucumber, tomatoes, green pepper, red onion, frozen corn kernels, thawed, and green beans. The dressing's ingredients were plain yogurt, non-fat mayonnaise, skim milk, dried Italian seasoning and fresh garlic. All very healthy ingredients in recipes provided by Eat Smart New York and USDA's SNAP program.

SueAnn's husband Richard has been on hand this year to assist her, and he gets to sample the food as well (think official taster!). By four thirty in the afternoon, clean up of the Home and Careers Kitchen was underway as part of the Mikalah, Aisha, and Yenessa's completion of the class. Thanks to CCE and FCSD's Wellness Committee, the lessons they learn about healthy food and preparing it will be brought home to each family by their children.

The Olive Jar- By Carol Olsen LaMonda The New Normal

I feel like I am living in an Episode of THE TWILIGHT ZONE or a novel by Ray Bradbury or Arthur Clarke. Who could ever have imagined that the world would hit the pause button on life as we know it.

Living on some seven acres on a hill in the woods, the world looks pretty much the same except we, like others, are social distancing. Hudson, the lab, loves it since he has our twenty-four hour attention and a supply of liverwurst stuffed marrow bones, at least at the moment.

I am thanking my good fortune to be living in the country close to the new rail trail. It has taken the place of my husband's gym, and he walks each day for hours. The Boiceville end walking toward Shokan is especially spectacular with views of the Ashokan Reservoir and mountain vista every hundred meters or so. Hudson and I tend to do more of a walk, sniff, drag, stop, sniff, greet walk that is less exercise.

Soon I will tackle the leaves I neglected last fall in our few garden spaces. Aside from that, I am un-characteristically cleaning and cooking. Once a day I design a "Mystery Lesson" for my granddaughter to keep in touch. I admire how quickly schools and health institutions are responding to this crisis. I worry about my other grandchildren in the big cities of Brooklyn and Boston. As I watch the stock market tank, I take comfort that I am not alone and that this too shall pass. I am regaining faith in our humanity.

fort that I am not alone and that this too shall pass. I am regaining faith in our humanity. Life has become simpler for me with time to reflect upon what is really important. I plan to watch some movies and read some of my stockpiled books, but the news is like a magnet that keeps me nervously informed. As I social distance from friends and family, I am glued to television and internet, and I feel like I am part a world out there that is suffering together. There is a comfort in acknowledging a common enemy and uniting without labels. Be safe, stay home, and be well.

Ulster County Executive Ryan announces the opening of first COVID-19 testing site at Tech City

Second location planned to open next week in Ellenville KINGSTON, N.Y. - County Executive Pat Ryan today announced information about Ulster County's first drive-through mobile COVID-19 testing site located at Tech City. County Executive Ryan plans for a second site to open in Ellenville next week. The site, operated in partnership with Nuvance Health, will add significant testing capacity and streamline the process for residents to be safely tested. In addition, the mobile site will reduce possible exposure to COVID-19 at hospitals and medical practices, which are preparing to handle an increasing number of patients affected by COVID-19. Save-On, a local business in Kingston, has donated $100,000 in tent supplies for the location.

"Adding this mobile testing site will save lives. It will provide a significant surge in testing capacity, which will enable us to better treat those affected and slow the spread of COVID-19," Ulster County Executive Pat Ryan said. "I want to thank Nuvance Health and Save-On for stepping up during this critical moment for our community. Our entire team will continue to work around the clock to keep every Ulster County resident safe and healthy."

Individuals seeking a COVID-19 test at the testing site must meet all of the following criteria:

Outdoor Firematic Service for Grahamsville Fireman

Roger G. "Buster" TerBush Dedicated and beloved Grahamsville Fireman Roger G. "Buster" TerBush, 76, passed away at home on March 6, 2020. He leaves behind to celebrate his life his wife Martha of 46 years, and many other loving relatives.

As owner of Buster's Auto Repair, kept he the Grahamsville fire trucks, ambulance rigs, and many other local fire departments' trucks in perfect maintenance. A firematic service was held at the Colonial Memorial Funeral Home in Woodbourne on March 18th. Although the Coronavirus (COVID-19) scare kept people apart, undaunted, the Grahamsville Fireman in full uniform, and firemen from many other local fire departments held the Firematic service in the funeral home rear parking lot alongside the Fire Department Rescue truck. The speaker, Scott Raymond, spoke on Buster's theme "Can you fix it?" He was also a member of Neversink Rondout the Antique Machinery Association. At the end of the service, the farewell bell mounted on the back of the engine gonged five times in traditional farewell.

The graveside service was held at 11AM on Thursday, March 19, 2020 at the Grahamsville Rural Cemetery with full military honors. Firemen from the local fire departments in full uniform stood side by side a distance from the ceremony. Across Route 55 in the Tri-Valley Central School parking lot were parked the Grahamsville fire trucks. A special ladder truck, with the ladder fully extended, draped a large American flag over Route 55. Below the flag were firefighters and first aiders in full turnout uniform standing in quiet tribute. Parked on Route 55, on the cemetery service side was Buster's beautifully restored red and white 1951 Dodge Power Wagon fire truck with water pump attached in front.

After the morning service, there was a plentiful spread prepared by the wonderful Ladies Auxiliary and many friends at the Neversink Fire Department Community Hall. But in an abundance of caution, it was only takeout.

We happily remember Buster driving the old Dodge, winning awards and trophies at the Sullivan County Volunteer Fireman's Association annual parade, with his head out the window smiling and waving to the crowd. - Submitted by William Brenner,

Consider Helping to Make Much-Needed Face Masks

A protective mask is a barrier only, a barrier for airborne germs and particles that may be traveling through the air and the mask gives you the jump on staving off any particles flying around if you are out and in contact with the general public. Most masks are usually made from special paper, however, the surgical masks in the Sixties and early Seventies were made of cloth and laundered at high temperatures. So if you are using a mask to just wear to the grocery store or for a small trip out and you want a protection barrier, a cloth mask will work fine for those purposes. In addition to that, you have the prerogative to launder it as you wish, meaning you can take extra precautions like using bleach with your laundry detergent and also hydrogen peroxide can make a great addition to your wash. Both bleach and hydrogen peroxide are excellent disinfectants and can really make your laundry super bright and fresh. DO NOT use them together.

There are a lot of DIY masks on Youtube. We found one that is easy to make and has elastic rings that fit through the mask and lock behind the ears, so you can become custom fit by adjusting the elastic pieces so they fit very snugly, but will still be comfortable. We will be putting it up in a printable pdf document for anyone to use.

There is more than one way to construct a mask.

If you can't get a hold of elastic string, try ponytail bands or simple baker's twine for tying.

Wrapping a bandana or scarf around your face is not the most effective material at blocking virus particles, according to a Cambridge University study on how household materials hold up against micronsize particles and viruses.

To put that into perspective, a virus particle is about one-millionth of an inch, or a thousand times smaller than bacteria, which is already much smaller than most human cells.

Researchers found that surgical face masks, made of a specialized paper that is both strong and breathable, were roughly 89 percent effective at preventing sick individuals from transmitting virus particles that are .02 microns (or micrometers) in size, which is five times smaller than the coronavirus. Meanwhile, particles 1 micron in size, 10 times larger than the coronavirus, were filtered at a rate of 97 percent.

A vacuum cleaner bag was considered the most formidable household material with a rate of nearly 86 percent protection against the smallest particles tested. Falling behind was a standard dish towel at nearly 73 percent; a cotton-blend T-shirt at 70 percent; and an antimicrobial pillowcase at 68 percent.

They also tested how doubling up on the material could help. In the case of dish towels, two layers showed a notable increase in filtration rate - a 14 percent jump for particles of 1 micron in size - although the same level of increased benefits could not be said for cotton shirts or pillowcases. (Contd. Pg. 9)

(From Pg. 8) Nevertheless, the Cambridge researchers still chose cotton pillowcases and T-shirts as their favorite option in a pinch because of their breathability. While two dish towel layers may be formidable against many micro-particles, they found the construction 138 percent more difficult to breathe through than a typical surgical face mask, whereas a double-layer of pillowcases was just 4 percent less breathable.

While medical-grade face masks were found to be, on average, "three times more effective in blocking transmission [of microorganisms]" compared to their homemade counterparts, they also concluded that makeshift masks are still better than none at all.

Our Healthworkers are in need of these homemade masks right now! They do have some of the high quality masks that are made to protect them from the virus. Covering that mask with one of the homemade cotton masks will add to the life of the more durable mask, protecting it. A healthcare worker can remove the cotton mask after each patient and use another. The used homemade cotton masks will then get washed in bleach and sterilized to be used again.

Once you have made a face mask for yourself or a family member, perhaps you would consider make as many masks as you can and donate them to our health care workers who on the front line fighting the COVID-19 War for us. If you do make some face masks to donate to our Sullivan County Health Nurses, please put them in a plastic bag, and leave them on the porch on the side of the Grahamsville First Aid Building where a Sullivan County Health Nurse will pick them up.

Thank you all who can help - by eitherer contributing face masks, fabric for masks, pony tail rubber bands, thread, elastic string or even an old sewing machine that you are no longer using. Someone may be able to use for this cause. Everyone working together can save lives.

A pattern and directions to make a suitable facemask for our Health Workers to use right now will be posted on our website - thetownsman.com.

Governor Andrew Cuomo Message to New Yorkers Sunday Night:

I want to take a moment to thank all the New Yorkers on the front lines of the Coronavirus pandemic: the health care workers, the firefighters, the police officers, the public transit workers, the childcare workers, the grocers, the pharmacists, the farmers and so many others. They are all heroes and we owe them our deepest gratitude. They're stepping up for all of us, so when you see them, thank them. Here's what else you need to know as of Sunday night:

STOP THE SPREAD OF GERMS Help prevent the spread of respiratory diseases like COVID-19. Cover your cough or sneeze with a tissue, oid close contact with people who are sick then throw the tissue in the trash. Clean and disinfect frequently touched objects and surfaces. Avoid touching your eyes, nose, and mouth. your hands often with s rater for at least 20 seco Ho 1-888-364-3065 For more information: www.cdc.gov/COVID19

1. We have identified four initial sites in New York State for locating temporary hospitals in partnership with the Army Corps of Engineers. The four sites are the Jacob K. Javits Convention Center, SUNY Stony Brook, SUNY Old Westbury and the Westchester Convention Center. The Army Corps is expected to immediately begin work to construct the temporary hospitals. I also requested that FEMA designate four field hospitals with 250 beds each for the state.

2. Mental health is a vital part of public health. To that end, I am calling on psychologists, therapists and other mental health professionals to pitch in and volunteer their services to help with New York's Coronavirus response. To sign up, visit health.ny.gov/assistance.

3. The State has identified 2 million N95 masks for purchase and will send 1 million to New York City and 500,000 to Long Island. New York apparel manufacturers are converting their operations to begin manufacturing masks and other medical equipment. Also, the state purchased 6,000 additional critically needed ventilators. We are literally scouring the globe looking for medical supplies. I put out a plea yesterday asking for help and we've been on the phone with all sorts of companies who are really doing great work - I want to thank them all.

4. The Department of Motor Vehicles is closed for all in-office visits. Today, I signed an Executive Order to temporarily close DMV offices and shift the DMV to online transactions. License and permit expirations will be extended, so if your driver's license is about to expire - don't worry. 5. Young people: Please stay home. There is significant non-compliance of social distancing rules, especially in parks. I went down to Prospect Park in Brooklyn today to see the situation myself. This is a public health issue. Younger people aren't invincible: In fact, 54% of New York State Coronavirus cases are ages 18-49. You shouldn't be endangering your own health, and you certainly have no right to endanger someone else's.

6. Drug therapy trials are on the horizon. NY Health Commissioner Dr. Zucker has recommended trials for new drug therapy to help combat COVID-19. The FDA is acquiring 10,000 doses of Hydroxychloroquine and Zithromax for New York State to use on a trial basis.

Tonight's "Deep Breath Moment": Morning show host Kelly Ripa and her husband, Mark Consuelos, donated $1 million to help my office purchase additional ventilators and to support WIN, the largest provider of shelter for New York City's homeless families. I can't thank them enough for their generosity.

Ever Upward, Governor Andrew M. Cuomo

MARCH 26, 2020

MARCH 26, 2020 The Scene Too

- Jane Harrison

I've resigned myself to remaining in for the duration, but I'm viewing this as a really interesting time. Some of this is being open to self awareness and part of this is physically doing things that I haven't had time for.

Things I've learned being home this week:

Exactly how much (actually how little) dry food the cats eat in a day

They have self chosen their 'feeding spots"

Certain people call to check on you, followed by

"Now that you have the time, can you....??" I automatically pick up the TV remote when I go to another room, even if the TV isn't on

Then I have to search for the remote

I haven't lost the ability to cook from scratch

I really enjoy knitting and crocheting, even though

I've been using these as stress reducers for years Sitting outside in the sun is comforting

And watching only 15 minutes of news is good for my mental health.

I've made a conscious decision to remain positive.

The picture is of the back of a sweater I started a while back. I usually do the front and back at the same time on a circular needle, but after starting it, I realized this is one of those "no rhyme or reason" patterns so common with those patterns that are offered free. And I can tell you as an experienced knitter, I've unraveled and re knit parts of this more times than I like. It is stunning, though, don't you think? With any luck, I'll have it finished in a week or so and show you the finished piece.

This is also going to be a good time for me to learn the ins and outs of my new-to-me camera. You know how sometimes you have something that just 'feels right'? It was purchased from a photojournalist friend and I've played with it a little but now I have the time. I'm excited!!

All venues have shuttered for the duration.

Please stay safe.

Until next time....

SC Chamber of Commerce Announces Centralized Information Page on Website

Monticello, New York March 18, 2020 - Sullivan County Chamber of Commerce & Industry, announced they have put up a centralized web page for information in response to the COVID-19 Pandemic. https://www.catskills.com/covid-19/

Earlier last week the Chamber sent out a survey to the business community. Jaime Schmeiser, President and CEO of the Sullivan County Chamber of Commerce stated that "What we have found is most businesses are choosing to remain open with normal operating hours. Also, they are paying close meticulous attention to keeping surfaces clean and safe for their customers. Restaurants are offering take-out, curbside service and most are offering their full menus and specials. We also found the need for up to date information critical"

"This page has been created for the express purpose of sharing important updates, guidelines, and information that we know our members and communities will need going forward and "we plan on updates on a daily basis and minute by minute basis if needs be. We encourage everyone to share this information with others", Jaime said.

The Chamber is asking everyone to send them their thoughts, ideas and best practices and continue to share the information that they are putting out there. The Chamber knows there are still many questions, and today's news and answers may be different tomorrow. The Chamber will be continually updating their website, newsletters and emails to stay as current as possible.

Info for the General Public on COVID-19

In roughly 80% of those who become infected with COVID-19, symptoms will be mild and resolve without hospitalization. Those most at risk are folks over the age of 80 and/or with weak immune systems. It is urged that they refrain from participating in events or going to locations where there is a potential for coronavirus exposure.

If you are not ill with fever, cough and/or shortness of breath, you do not have need of COVID-19 testing and WILL NOT be tested for coronavirus, either at our local hospitals or healthcare providers. DO NOT overwhelm already busy health workers with non-essential demands. Only individuals with symptoms who have an underlying health issue or immune system disorder need to be tested. A reminder that with this outbreak, 80% of individuals who test positive will self-resolve and get better at home without needing medical attention.

ULSTER COUNTY EXECUTIVE RYAN HOLDS LIVE FACEBOOK TOWN HALL ON COVID-19

County Executive Ryan holds his fifth virtual town hall to update residents on the County's response to COVID-19

County Executive Ryan shares information about the opening of first COVID-19 testing site at Tech City and the second location planned to open in Ellenville on March 31st

KINGSTON, N.Y. - County Executive Pat Ryan held his fifth Facebook Live Town Hall today to update residents on Ulster County's response to COVID-19. County Executive Ryan received nearly 500 questions and directly answered residents' questions ranging from the testing process to supporting workers at the front lines of this crisis. This was his first Town Hall that was also simultaneously broadcasted in Spanish.

"Our new mobile testing site will save lives. I am very proud of all of our partners who have stepped up and made our first day of mobile testing a huge success," County Executive Pat Ryan said. "My team will not rest, we are going to continue to gather resources, share information, and do everything in our power to guarantee the health and safety of the residents of Ulster County." Additionally, County Executive Pat Ryan shared additional information about Ulster County's first drive-through mobile COVID-19 testing site located at Tech City. County Executive Ryan plans for a second site to open in Ellenville by March 31st. The site, operated in partnership with Nuvance Health, will add significant testing capacity and streamline the process for residents to be safely tested. County Executive Ryan said that the new site will allow for up to 200 tests per day. In addition, the mobile site will reduce possible exposure to COVID-19 at hospitals and medical practices, which are preparing to handle an increasing number of patients affected by COVID-19

Individuals seeking a COVID-19 test at the testing site must meet all of the following criteria:

- You called your primary care physician's office and had a phone consultation

Based on your symptoms and other information you provided, your physician determined that you meet criteria for COVID-19 testing, and ordered a test for you

- You have a scheduled appointment at the collection site. Scheduling information will be provided by your physician. Any individual who does not have a primary care physician, should contact the Ulster County COVID-19 Hotline at 845-443-8888.

Residents permitted by their physician to enter the site will be met by a trained provider who will collect a sample for lab testing. After leaving the test site, residents should drive home and limit interactions with others during this time. Those who are tested should plan to self-quarantine for up to 14 days and will receive self-quarantine guidelines at the collection site. It may take up to six days to receive test results back and individuals who receive tests will be notified by their doctor with the results. Both healthcare providers and law enforcement will be on site along with three clinicians from Ellenville Hospital.

Tech City is located at 300 Enterprise Drive, Kingston, NY 12401. The testing site is currently slated to be open Monday through Saturday, 8:30 AM to 3:30 PM by appointment only. Traffic message boards have been placed along entry routes (both Enterprise Drive and Boices Lane) to direct individuals progresses in stages and, if untreated, can lead to complete loss of kidney function. At CKD stage 5, when both kidneys fail completely, the only options for survival are dialysis or a kidney transplant. Nick is at stage 5.

More about our warrior Nick...

Nick was diagnosed with Tuberous Sclerosis Complex (TSC) at birth. TSC is a neurological disorder that produces seizures, tumors, and lesions that effect the organs of the body and can cause Autism. Nick battled with seizures his whole life from infantile spasms to adult grand-mal seizures. Finally the past year and half Nick's seizures have been controlled but his kidney function was deteriorating. May 2019 we heard the worst news that Nick's function was under 10% on both kidneys! Since then Nick has had 2 surgeries to put ports in his neck and stomach so dialysis can be preformed. Nick has transitioned to home dialysis and has been a tough adjustment. Not what the sweetest, kindest, 29 year old should be going through.

Nick has such a big heart and is loved by so many in our community. We all want Nick to have the best quality of life and going through dialysis does not provide that quality. We hope and pray a kidney comes to us and that Nick will be able to live a happy and healthy life doing what he loves and that is to bicycle all throughout our town making people smile. Nick is a big part of the community, he takes pride with his volunteer work with the EMS and is the Honorary member of the Monticello Fire Department. Lets all band together for Nick and help him find a kidney so he can live life to the fullest!
